

Olney Boone Conservation District

Rangeland Monitoring

The Olney Boone Conservation District in conjunction with the Colorado Grazing Lands Conservation Initiative (GLCI) are sponsoring Range Monitoring Training on November 5, 2009. Registration is at 9:30 a.m. The training begins at 10:00 a.m. The training will be held at the Crowley Heritage Center, 300 Main Street, Crowley, CO.

This session is open to students, landowners, land managers, state land lessees and anyone else who is interested in learning how to manage their rangeland.

The registration fee is $25.00, which includes lunch.

Instructors will demonstrate various techniques using range transects. They will also discuss how proper monitoring of rangeland is widely becoming important for today's ever-changing climates. Instructors will also demonstrate how to document defensible positive and negative changes in rangeland conditions.

Interested individuals should call 719-254-7672, write or email the district manager at shelley.pfeiff@co.nacdnet.net. Registration numbers are limited, so please sign up early to reserve your place at this very important training.
